

"TMI Project's methodology is effectively teaching a new generation of boys to be expressive, authentic, and respectful of girls and women. Stockade Works is proud to be documenting the process so the message can be shared en masse to create real and lasting social change." – MARY STUART MASTERTON, STOCKADE WORKS

LOCKER ROOM TALK

Host a screening of Locker Room Talk at your school to raise awareness and spark meaningful dialogue.

The docu-short Locker Room Talk follows the Kingston Tigers over the course of their football season, both on and off the field, as they seek the championship and redefine what it means to be men. Along the way, through the power of true storytelling, they face the cultural expectations of masculinity head-on and ultimately, share deeply personal stories about love, loss, and triumph. Whether or not the Tigers win the game, a bigger battle has been won: the team has changed the way they view women and themselves.

The stories, vulnerability, and bravery of the young men featured in the film has the power to inspire change in other teams, high school and college students, and adults, making the world a freer and safer place for us all.

Pair a screening with a true storytelling workshop to inspire men and boys to become empowered to speak up for themselves, each other, and in the face of violence against women.

"Being able to talk to each other about what we're really going through has made us all closer. It's also helped to take a lot of stress away. I've learned that everyone is going through more than you know. Everyone, whether you can see it or not."

– FORMER KINGSTON HS FOOTBALL PLAYER
CHAPMAN PARKER (HE/HIM)

TMI Project helps participants craft and share their stories that intentionally include the “too much information” parts we usually keep to ourselves. We help storytellers do more than entertain. They speak the unspeakable to replace isolation with connection and freedom, for themselves and those who listen.

All of TMI Project’s programming can be booked on its own or in partnership with a screening of Locker Room Talk.

Since 2010, TMI Project has:

- Presented to more than 250,000 audience members
- Staged live storytelling performances by nearly 3,000 storytellers
- Led more than 150 true storytelling workshops

We offer a variety of programs (virtual and in-person):

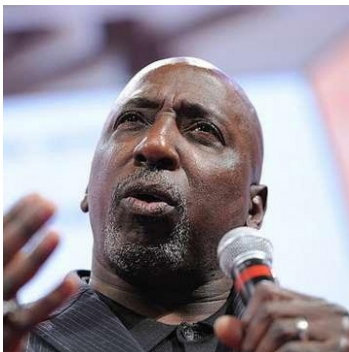

- Film screenings
- True storytelling performances
- One-time and/or multi-session workshops
- Long term partnerships

Our expertly trained workshop leaders will work with you to:

- Sharpen storytelling and public speaking skills
- Help groups build trust and understanding
- Improve authentic, brave communication
- Promote team and culture building
- Facilitate conversations addressing challenging issues

Pair any program with exercises that:

- Remove the fear of exploring challenging topics
- Develop an anti-oppression-based mindfulness practice
- Illuminate blind spots
- Uncover unconscious bias
- Gain tools to navigate charged communication
- Leave you with long-lasting concrete follow-up action items

“TMI Project is a champion of humanity. Thanks for showing us how to model vulnerability and accountability, how to heal in community, and how to be our full authentic selves.”

– TONY PORTER, CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER, A CALL TO MEN

MARK HERZLICH

Former NY Giants: Linebacker

“The goal is to have one or two of these students speak up and take a step outside of The Man Box. If that happens, it’s going to spread like wildfire.”

JONATHAN STEWART

Former Carolina Panthers:
Running Back

“If you see men all of a sudden being vulnerable and expressing their feelings, and actually standing up for women, you would see a complete change. It would be a better world to live in.”

CURTIS MARTIN

Former NY Jets: Running Back

“What I have come to understand is that it takes more strength to submit myself to being vulnerable, to being emotional. Being guarded keeps people out but it also keeps yourself in. It’s an emotionally suffocating life.”

We look forward to learning more about your school culture to help you address challenges, celebrate successes, and meet your unique goals.

Contact us today: info@tmiproject.org

tmiproject.org | 65 Saint James Street Kingston, NY 12401

Follow us on social: @tmiproject

